All passengers departing from any Indian airport must have a barcoded ticket or boarding pass. This is a new rule implemented by the Indian government to improve airport security and efficiency.

- Barcoded ticket or boarding pass is mandatory: You must have a ticket or boarding pass with a barcode to enter the departure terminal.
- Digi Yatra a biometric-based travel process is an alternative option to bypass the barcode requirement.
- No access without verification: Airport security will verify the authenticity of the travel document and the passenger before allowing entry to the departure terminal.
- To avoid delays, it's recommended that you arrive at the airport with plenty of time to spare.

In essence, this means that all passengers travelling from India must be prepared with a barcoded ticket or boarding pass to avoid any issues at the airport.
